

A résumé on your pet will not only provide the owner/manager with all relevant information about your pet, it will also clearly demonstrate you are a responsible pet owner.

Information you include should cover:

- a physical description of your pet – name, age and physical appearance;
- details of any training your pet has received;
- a description of your exercise regime with your pet (if applicable) covering the number of times you exercise your pet, the usual location and the usual duration of each outing; and
- details on the health and grooming of your pet, covering issues such as neutering, vaccination record and how frequently you groom it.

In addition, mention anything about your pet’s age, activity level or traits which help reinforce that it is a ‘good tenant’.

When the above information is provided with references attached, you will be ensuring the owner/manager makes their decision with the benefit of a full description of your pet and its habits, and in the knowledge that you are a responsible pet owner.

Below is a sample pet agreement upon which property owners/managers can base their own. As in the case of the other materials provided, it is designed to have a broad application but we acknowledge that specific alterations/additions may be required.

RENTING WITH PETS

A Tenant’s Guide

A guide to help Pet Owners seeking Rental Accommodation
2002

In Australia, more than two thirds of households own pets. We have amongst the highest incidence of pet ownership per household of any country in the world.

But finding pet friendly rental accommodation – be it a house, unit or apartment – is not always easy. The aim of this brochure is to assist you in the search.

Across the country, residential tenancy agreements either do not mention keeping pets or state that written consent is required from the landlord before pets are allowed in rental properties. The information and suggestions provided in this brochure are to help you obtain that written permission, so you can enjoy the companionship of your pet in rental accommodation.

Simply, when looking for a place that will accept tenants with pets, it is essential to remember the following points:

- responsible pet owners make responsible tenants;
- be prepared to put in some time and effort;
- find out what makes landlords say yes to pets; and
- be a great representative for all pet-owning tenants.

In the process of searching for pet friendly rental accommodation the following hints will be useful.

- Raise the subject of pets in person with the owner/manager if possible. Presenting information about yourself and your pet in a face-to-face meeting will have a better impact than if it is raised over the telephone.
- Prepare and have handy a complete résumé on your pet which includes all medical records, obedience school certificates and written references from past landlords, neighbours, obedience schools and veterinarians.
- Offer to sign a pet agreement to clearly define behaviour appropriate to the rental premises.
- Pets are not permitted to be kept in many Strata Title properties because of specific Body Corporate By-laws. Check the By-laws of the Body Corporate in your Strata Title development to identify any special conditions for pets.
- Encourage the owner/manager to meet your well-groomed, well-behaved pet to demonstrate it is responsibly cared for and obedient.

Your Pet's Details

Create a résumé for you and your pet(s) (see next page) which includes documents as proof of spay/neuter surgery, current medical records including vaccinations and proof of regular veterinary visits and any obedience school documents.

References

Include in the résumé written references from previous landlords, neighbours, obedience class instructors and veterinarians.

Pet Deposit

In Western Australia you can offer to pay an additional 'pet deposit' of up to $100 to cover any charges resulting from your pet's actions as a demonstration of your responsible approach to renting with pets. Most other Australian states do not permit the payment of pet specific deposits or bonds.

Pet Agreement

Offer to jointly develop and sign a pet agreement with your landlord which covers all likely situations which may arise and actions to be taken in the event that problems or issues arise with your pet.

Meeting

Offer to bring your pet to meet the property owner/manager to demonstrate it is well behaved and cared-for.

Further demonstrate you are a responsible pet owner by explaining that:

- you provide appropriate levels of exercise and attention to your pet at all times;
- you do not let your pet roam the streets;
- you make suitable arrangements to care for your pet if you are away on business or holidays;
- you always keep control of your dog in public places, and
- you hygienically clean up after your pet at all times.
